

President's Image Of The Future

We at Eastern Wyoming College intend to further develop quality, comprehensive and affordable programs that respond to the needs of the community and the region. That means providing an environment that includes the finest programs as well as instructors, facilities and equipment. EWC is in the process of and will continue to develop creative business/industry partnerships and expand its role as the cultural, and intellectual hub of the community. EWC shares a keen interest in our region's future and intends to—

- Develop a clear role for the college in economic development;
- Build enrollment by expanding vocational and academic programs and services;
- Retain students by providing safe and comfortable housing;
- Provide workforce training for business and industry in the region;
- Expand extracurricular programs such as women's basketball, women's softball, baseball and livestock judging;
- Expand agriculture related programs and services for farmers, ranchers, and other agricultural organizations in cooperation with other entities;
- Facilitate forums to address common issues among environmentalists, farmers, ranchers and potential developers.

Our major gifts campaign for program development and housing will keep our college vital and growing.

Your commitment to this community partnership will allow EWC to grow and better serve the needs of our students. It is a decision to invest in the economic health and vitality of our community and region.

Dr. Jack Bottenfield,
President
