The Quinton Aaron Foundation was started in 2012 by Quinton Aaron (the actor that played Big Mike in the movie "The Blindside") to fight the battle against bullying and childhood obesity. Bullying has become a world-wide epidemic. The effects are far reaching and long term. The mission of The Quinton Aaron Foundation is to provide hope, encouragement, confidence and resources to children on the brink of suicide or battling the damaging effect on self-esteem and confidence caused by the actions or words of others. Quinton has been traveling to schools all over the country sharing his personally motivating story about his own experiences.
